The simplest way to apply video speed changes or reverse playback.

The screenshot shows a video editing software interface. At the top, a scene is identified as "Scene-030-01" with a duration of "00;01;25;36 (5132 frames) : 00;00;00;00 - 00;01;25;36". Below this, a speed graph is visible with several keyframes. A blue callout box points to a keyframe with the text "Just dragging the keypoint changes the speed." Another blue callout box points to the "Video Interpolation" dropdown menu with the text "Video Interpolation option is newly available." The dropdown menu is currently set to "Optical Flow (Quality Priority)". A data panel on the right shows the following information:

- Time: 00;00;42;32
- Current Time in Clip: 00;00;42;32
- Current Time in Source: 00;00;48;01
- Speed from Previous Keypoint: 340.5%
- Speed to Next Keypoint: 87.2%

At the bottom left, there is a checkbox for "Enable Time Remap" which is checked, and a "Video Interpolation:" dropdown menu.
